2021 PROGRAM RESULTS

Transition2Work improves workers' compensation outcomes by connecting injured workers with nonprofits for meaningful transitional duty. By combining business and community, our return to work solutions help control the rising cost of claims while positively influencing the lives of employees and contributing to the community.

In 2021, many companies and nonprofits shifted the way they do business. As the industry leader, ReEmployAbility adapted by expanding the Work from Home program with additional remote work opportunities while still securing assignments at nonprofit locations throughout the nation. Collaborating with our network of nonprofits, ReEmployAbility provides programs with flexible options including onsite, remote, and even nonprofit assignments at the employers' worksite. Transition2Work offers meaningful return-to-work for injured workers while utilizing their capabilities, safely within COVID-19 protocols.

Success

Since its inception, Transition2Work has a 99% success rate in securing an assignment

Savings

Employers and carriers realize an average indemnity savings of more than $4,100 per claim referred

Outcomes

59% return to work, reach MMI, or resolve their claim

Participation

55% of employees referred to the program participate in an assignment

Our annual program results highlight the impact to all - the injured employee, the community, employers, and carriers!

ReEmployAbility connects people to a greater purpose so they can have a better life. Along with supporting their local nonprofit organizations, participants in the Transition2Work program continue to receive income, easing the strain on family finances. Providing the Transition2Work program shows employees they are valued, and their company cares about their health and well-being. When an employee participates in a Transition2Work assignment, they make a substantial impact on the community where they live.
